

BRYAN AND THE
BENNETT WILLDistinguished Nebraskan Again on the Witness Stand.

SOME DETAILS EXPLAINED

SOME OF THE OFFERS MADE TO MRS. BENNETT.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22.—William J. Bryan again occupied the witness stand in the probate court here on the hearing on the application for probating the will of the late Philo S. Bennett was resumed today. In the cross-examination of Mr. Bryan, Judge Stoddard, counsel for Mrs. Bennett, the widow, spent considerable time in questioning Mr. Bryan as to why it was that in the letter which was left for Mrs. Bennett by her husband, directing her to give Mr. Bryan $50,000 for himself and family, it was not stated that a certain part of that sum was to be given to Mrs. Bryan and part of it to the children. Mr. Bryan replied that he did not know, but that it was so understood between him and Mrs. Bennett, and that after Mr. Bennett's death he told Mrs. Bennett about the arrangement. Judge Stoddard then asked Mr. Bryan if Mrs. Bennett was present beside himself and Mr. Bennett when they discussed that letter in which the "bequest" was made to Mrs. Bennett. The witness answered that he did not remember, but thought that Mrs. Bryan was not present, although she attended the reading of the will. Judge Stoddard then asked Mr. Bennett and one to himself, relating to this point. Judge Stoddard also inquired why it was that in the letter to Mrs. Bennett that Mrs. Bryan knew the contents of this sealed letter which said that the writer preferred to have no one know it but Mrs. Bennett and himself.

Mr. Bryan replied that he had told Mrs. Bennett the details of the agreement when he came to see her after Mrs. Bennett's death. He added that he presumed that it had not occurred to either Mr. Bennett or himself to mention Mrs. Bennett's name in the letter. The witness was asked to explain why he had received $500 from Mr. Bennett at the time the will was read, and he stated that while there was nothing about it, he supposed it to be for drawing up the document.

Mr. Stoddard then questioned the witness regarding some offers he had made to Mrs. Bennett with regard to the $50,000 bequest to himself and family. Mr. Bryan said that he had told Mrs. Bennett that he was willing to pay the inheritance tax on the entire $50,000 and that he would give her $5,000 in trust for three persons who were his relatives, the balance to be invested by him in government bonds and the interest to be paid to her, or unless he should need it because of broken health or in case of her death.

Investments for Bryan.
When Judge Stoddard asked the witness if Mr. Bennett had ever made investments for him, Mr. Bryan replied that he had made such investments with the proceeds of the subscription which came in under the "Commonwealth" fund, buying government bonds with the proceeds of the subscription which came in under the "Commonwealth" fund, buying government bonds with the proceeds of the subscription which came in under the "Commonwealth" fund.

Mr. Bryan said that he had never made an investment in the "Commonwealth" fund, but that he had made an investment in the "Commonwealth" fund, but that he had made an investment in the "Commonwealth" fund, but that he had made an investment in the "Commonwealth" fund.

James D. Dewell, a wholesale grocer, stated that for many years he had known Mr. Bennett, and that he had known him to be a shrewd, capable business man and a man of high character.

Replying to questions, he stated that Mr. Bennett appeared to be in good mental condition at the time the will was read. He was a man, said the witness, whose opinion was easily changed.

At this point Judge Stoddard interrupted with the question: "Did he worship Mr. Bryan?"

Witness replied: "I always knew that he held the highest opinion of him." Mr. Bryan then made a statement which somewhat modified his answer to no money had been invested for Mrs. Bryan by Mr. Bennett. He said that when he received the royalties on his book, "The First Battle," he gave Mrs. Bryan, who wrote the biography, a sum amounting to about $4,000. This was in part for the biography, but he could not recall whether it was by Mr. Bennett or by a Chicago firm.

The case was adjourned until Monday evening.
